	Dancing on Our Bones: New Zealand, South Africa, Rugby and Racism* Trevor Richards 230mm x 150mm • 300 pages • Illustrations • ISBN 9781877242007 RRP $39.99 • Publication 1999 This history of New Zealand opposition to playing sport with South Africa is traced from an early 1921 Springboks–Māori rugby match to the protests generated by the 1981 tour and beyond. What does an issue that sparked so much controversy over so many years tell us about ourselves?
	Treaty of Waitangi Settlements* Edited by Nicola Wheen and Janine Hayward 240mm x 170mm • 300 pages • 50 b/w illustrations • ISBN 9781927131381 RRP $49.99 • Publication 2012 The settlement of iwi claims under the Treaty of Waitangi has been a prominent feature of New Zealand's political landscape over the last thirty years. In this timely book, leading scholars offer the first analysis of the economic and social impact of the settlement process.
	An Unsettled History: Treaty Claims in New Zealand Today* Alan Ward 225mm x 150mm • 212 pages • 50 b/w photographs • ISBN 9780908912971 RRP $34.99 • Publication 1999 Alan Ward's account reveals a Treaty made and then repeatedly breached. This is a compelling case – for fair and reasonable treatment, and for the rigorous continuation of the claims process. The impact of the past upon the present has rarely been analysed to such immediate purpose.
	Webs of Empire: Locating New Zealand's Colonial Past* Tony Ballantyne 240mm x 170mm • 320 pages • ISBN 9781927131435 RRP $49.99 • Publication 2012 A tangled web of cultural and economic networks spread across the colonial world. Tony Ballantyne positions New Zealand within these 'webs of empire'; his essays break open the narrative of colonisation to offer new perspectives on our history. Co-published with University of British Columbia Press.

*Beyond the Imperial Frontier: The Contest for Colonial New Zealand
Vincent O'Malley

240mm x 170mm • 284 pages • ISBN 9781927277539
RRP $49.99 • Publication 2014

Frontiers in colonial New Zealand were not simply lines on maps, but zones of contact and encounter. Beyond the Imperial Frontier explores these zones to discover the different ways Māori and Pākehā 'fronted' one another across the nineteenth century. Beginning with the time before 1840, an era marked by significant cooperation, Vincent O'Malley details the emergence of a more competitive and conflicted post-Treaty world.

*I Shall Not Die: Titokowaru's War (2nd edition)
James Belich

240mm x 170mm • 328 pages • 50 b/w illustrations • ISBN 9781877242496
RRP $39.99 • Publication 1st edn 1989, 2nd edn 2010

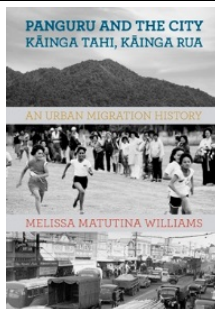

Titokowaru was one of New Zealand's greatest leaders. He worked in both peace and war to save the Taranaki people from European invasion in the nineteenth century. This compelling narrative by eminent historian James Belich won the Adam Award in 1990.

*In/visible Sight: The Mixed-Descent Families of Southern New Zealand
Angela Wanhalla

240mm x 170mm • 208 pages • 30 b/w illustrations • ISBN 9781877242434
RRP $39.99 • Publication 2009

Centring her story on the Otago community where her great-grandparents were born, Angela Wanhalla (Ngāi Tahu) explores the less visible side of colonialism – the world of kinship networks, families and communities. A ground-breaking study of interracial intimacy.

*Panguru and the City: Kāinga Tahī, Kāinga Rua
An Urban Migration History
Melissa Matutina Williams

260mm x 185mm • 304 pages • 100 b/w illustrations • ISBN 9781927247921
RRP$49.99 • Publication 2015

This new interpretation of Māori urban migration is told through the stories of the people of Panguru. For them, the shift to the city was more a matter of a 'co-existent home place' than of leaving the past behind. Melissa Matutina Williams writes from the centre of this narrative, as an urban member of a Panguru family.
